Saskatchewan Live Stock Associations

Better Bred Live Stock

---

(1) Use Good Pure Bred Sires

One good sire will improve your live stock as rapidly as fifty pure bred females.

(2) Cull the Scrubs

They cost as much to feed as the well bred animals but the returns are much less. Why keep them?

(3) Consider Market Conditions

Horses of the heavy draft type are always easy to sell.

Cattle must produce beef and milk on a profitable basis. Increase your quality before your quantity.

Sheep are now a splendid investment. Your Wool and lambs will bring you some revenue twice a year.

Swine of the bacon type always fetch a premium on the market. See that your boar is of the right type.

(4) Work Co-Operatively

By joining the Saskatchewan Live Stock Associations (Horse, Cattle, Sheep and Swine) you can do much to help forward the live stock industry in this province. The membership fee to each association is only $1.00 per annum, and many times that amount is returned to the members in services rendered. Members may compete for diplomas and swine prizes offered by these associations at your Fair.

Secretary-Treasurer:

J. G. ROBERTSON, Regina.

Entries to be made on or before Wednesday, July 24, 1929.

12. Animals competing as saddle horses cannot compete as drivers.

INSTRUCTIONS TO NEW EXHIBITORS

Those who are unused to exhibiting horses should study the following definitions regarding the classification of horses, and be governed according in entering their horses for exhibition.

Weight and Type are to be considered in entering and judging horses.

1. Agricultural—An agricultural horse should weigh from 1400 to 1600 pounds and be of rather more rangy formation than a drafter. They will not be too low set, about average in this respect, well made, with plenty of length of neck, a good sloping shoulder and sloping pastern which enables them to carry their weight easily, the bone and joints clean and flat, and free from all puffs or meetings. They must have good action, that is they must go straight with a strong free springy stride. They are the type that is most useful on the farm handling big implements in fours and sixes.

2. General Purpose—A general purpose horse, as the name implies must be suitable for use, to be a certain degree at any rate, under all conditions. In weight he should range from 1175 to about 1350. These horses must be well made and are usually lighter of limb than the other types, clean bones with good feet, and they should be nicely turned in the body and attractive. A good test is to decide whether or not they would be useful under saddle or driven single in a buggy. If they are too heavy or awkward for this work they are not general purpose horses.

3. Farm Chunk—The farm chunk is a misfit type usually weighing from 1300 to 1500 pounds, frequently are rather low and set and rather compact of build, but lacking the qualities of the agricultural or other types. They are short and straight of pastern and straight in the shoulder, invariably poor actors and are not a valuable type for any purpose.

4. Heavy Draft—This type should be very compact well made horses from 1600 pounds up. They must have a lot of scale with good strong bone and clean joints; sloping shoulder and sloping pastern is essential together with a large round sound foot, and have a general drafty appearance. His action must also be good, carrying the hocks good and going straight and free.

5. Light Draft—This is simply the same as the heavy draft in build and conformation, but lacks the scale and substance. His weights are usually from 1500 to 1600 pounds.

The loaf should rise evenly and be of uniform color and texture. It should not rise enough to large over the sides of the pan.

2 Crust—The crust should be a golden brown on top and bottom. It should be even and browned on all sides and not too thick.

3 Color—Bread should be a good brown color. It should not be grayish or greenish in color.

4 Lightness—Bread should be equal in lightness throughout. There should be no heavy spots or streaks anywhere.

5 Quality of Crumb—Cut it open through the middle of the loaf and look inside. Press it gently with the finger. The bread should be soft enough to press out, but the dent should spring back to the level surface. If the dent stays in the bread, your loaf should be too soft or too tight or too moist. If the bread is too hard that you cannot press it easily, you will know that you have used too much flour or that it is baked too long.

6 Texture—Bread should have a fine grain and should have no large holes in it. The holes should be of equal size all through the loaf.

7 Flavor—The flavor of your bread should be like the flavor of freshly cracked nuts. It should not taste of yeast and it should not taste sour or musty.
